School Board Changes Rule on Official Meeting Reports

Newspaper Reports Hereafter Will Not Need Signatures of Chairman and Secretary—Reporters to Secure Details in Conference with Secretary

At its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening the school committee withdrew its ruling on the matter of official reports. The rule, which stated in effect that no report of the meetings should be published unless over the signature of the chairman and the secretary, had proved unworkable. Official newspaper reports will now be written by the reporters after having secured the necessary facts from the secretary of the committee.

Other than this there was nothing outstanding done, the matter of transportation which has at times created some discussion in town being laid on the table because of the absence of two of the members. The proposed new amendments to the by-laws, concerning the method of electing teachers, school nurse, janitors, superintendent's clerk, and attendance officer were also tabled temporarily.

The committee was notified that the Division of Vocational Education has recommended to the General Court a return to the town of the following sums for continuation school work: Maintenance, $920.87 and tuition of pupils at the following schools: Trade school for girls, Boston, $83.39; Lawrence Evening Industrial school, $70.50; Lawrence Evening Practical Art school, $3.98 and Lawrence Continuation school, $21.78, giving a total of $1150.32.

Superintendent of Schools Henry C. Sanborn reported that the annual Health Day will be observed May 13, and on the evening of the same day the Lincoln Spelling matches will be held in the town hall. Professor Charles H. Forbes, well-known to those who have attended past spelling matches, will again give out the words, while Allan V. Heely will act as umpire. Appropriate exercises will be held in the schools on Health Day. The teachers' committee will give more study to pre-school clinic work. The matter has already been brought to the attention of the League of Women Voters, and soon other organizations will be made acquainted with it. It was reported that the Shawsheen Parent-Teacher association is doing quite a bit of work in this connection.

One resignation, that of Miss Dorothy F. Farnham, art supervisor for the past four years, was presented. Miss Farnham is soon to be married.

Because of the fact that last year contained fifty-three town pay days, four janitors in the schools received more than their yearly salary allows them, Mr. Sanborn reported. They were paid weekly one-fifty-second of their annual salary, and so in all they received fifty-three fifty-seconds of what they

Brilliant Recital by Former Abbot Girl

Miss Theodate Johnson, soprano, gave a very delightful recital at Abbot academy last Tuesday night before a large audience. From the outset one could feel a certain "atmosphere" in the hall, due to expectancy and interest in the work of an Abbot alumna. Miss Johnson will never sing before a more friendly audience, but her work is not dependent upon a home audience. She sang with great beauty and often with real distinction.

The characteristics of Miss Johnson's work seem to be a good voice, intelligence and temperament. There is a "dark" quality in the voice that makes the middle register sound like a contralto. In light-voice singing Miss Johnson is perfect. She has a flair for modern singing and interprets the music thrillingly. The Carella song, though not immortal music, was very convincing. It is evident that the young artist has a warm place in her heart for the Italians whose music she sings "con amore."

The whole program, admirably conceived, was sung with rare inteliigence, and reflects the skillful cooperation of Miss Johnson's teacher, Mrs. Ruth Thayer Burnham.

William Archilles was the accompanist and gave Miss Johnson the best sort of support: subordinate background. His work was admirable.

Local Vets Post Plans Poppy Sale

Following the announcement of last week that the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Andover post, have set aside Saturday, May 28, as Poppy Day in Andover, arrangements have been made to visit every home in town on this day.

The name of the Buddy Poppy is registered by the V. F. W., and no one not authorized by the local post will be permitted to sell them. Each flower is labeled and, as a further precaution, every V. F. W. poppy vendor will bear credentials of identification.

Each genuine Buddy Poppy carries a copyright green label which identifies it as the genuine handiwork of disabled or needy ex-service men. The majority are made in government hospitals throughout the United States, and a total of 6,000,000 will be completed in readiness for the national sale on May 28.

The necessity for adequate funds for relief and welfare work among ex-service men and their dependents increases yearly. With the depression now in sway, this welfare work promises to reach tremendous proportions during the coming winter, resulting in an earnest request of the local V. F. W. for local residents to give freely on May 28 when a representative calls at the door.

103d Birthday Celebrated at Abbot Acad.

Girls Observe Washington Bicentennial and School's 103d at Same Time

Abbot academy Wednesday afternoon celebrated its 103rd birthday and at the same time laid emphasis on the fact that this is Washington's bicentennial year. The Colonial atmosphere was prevalent everywhere in Davis hall and at various places red, white, and blue streamers were displayed. The entertainment program and the various booths added to the Colonial touch, with probably the only really modern feature being the dancing to the tune of up-to-date songs played by that group of boys at Phillips academy who have the very modern name of Riveters.

In the center of the room a space for dancing was set off by a little white picket fence. On the right of the door as one entered there was a Colonial garden which, early in the afternoon, contained many flowers of varied description. However, when the festivities ended at six o'clock, there were so few flowers left that they must have felt terribly lonely. And, in general, most of the booths fared very well, so that as the afternoon wore on, what was left in them was not important enough to prevent the dance floor space from encroaching upon the booths' territory.

The Colonial fireplace in the hall proved to be more than an ornament, for the kettle in front of it contained the little bundles which the girls and boys "grabbed" for. The food booth was a Colonial kitchen, and the book booth a Colonial library. The latter contained many books by Abbot authors and also Abbot postcards. The tea room was located on the stage in a garden setting. At one side of the hall was the gift booth, prominently displaying its red, white, and blue Featured on the entertainment program was an original song on George Washington written by Alice Schultz. Caroline Guptill and Betty Tomkins favored with tap dances, and a large chorus of girls sang "Three Little Maids from School."

The committees were as follows:

General chairman: Katharine Cook of New Bedford. Faculty advisors: Miss Dorothy Hopkins and Miss Beatrice Ward.

Chapel at Phillips Academy Will Be Dedicated Sunday

Dr. A. E. Stearns to Offer Prayer of Consecration—Rev. James Hardy Ropes and Rev. Robert R. Weeks Have Prominent Part in Ceremonies

On Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, the new chapel at Phillips academy will be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. The chapel will be formally presented to the trustees by a representative of the donor, and will be accepted by the Reverend James Hardy Ropes, D.D., president of the board, in their name. A prayer of consecration will be offered by Headmaster Alfred E. Stearns, and a scripture reading will be given by the Reverend Markham Winslow Stackpole, formerly academy minister, and now of Milton academy. The sermon will be preached by the Reverend Robert R. Wicks, of Princeton University. A musical program will be offered by the student choir, under the direction of Dr. Carl F. Pfatteicher, the academy organist. As a conclusion to the program the new silver communion service recently presented to the school in memory of Augustus Porter Thompson, Jr., of the class of 1928, will be consecrated, and a number of undergraduates will be received into the membership of the church.

With the completion of the academy chapel the building program, started some six or seven years ago on Andover Hill, is now virtually completed, except the new infirmary, which has been temporarily postponed. The chapel will be put into immediate use for Sunday services, and will be used for the Commencement exercises on Friday, June 17.

An organ recital by Dr. Pfatteicher will be given from 2.15 to 2.45 p.m. and the service will begin at three o'clock.

The citizens of Andover are cordially invited to attend. The pews in both aisles are free to all. Of necessity it is requested that the pews of the nave, the main body of the chapel, be left for the students of the academy.

Vets to Present "Amateur Night"

Andover is to have an old time Amateur Night, one of those laugh producing affairs that were so immensely enjoyed when a two-reel flicker was an innovation and "get a horse" was a favorite cry.

This announcement was made by Robert Deyermond, chairman of the Entertainment committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Andover post, who declared that, with many leaders of industry urging a return to the old manner of living, this should be a fair start in Andover.

"Friday night, May 20, is the date selected by the V. F. W. to sponsor those who yen to go before the footlights," declared the enthusiastic Bob, whose ideas run all the way from barbeques to swimming races. "And the town hall on that night should be the mecca of Andoverites who would enjoy a hearty laugh mixed, of course, with appreciation of the efforts of the young (and old) crooners, saxophonists, tap and shuffling dancers, and vaudeville performers.

"Everyone who has not had a contract with the Shuberts or an offer from the Columbia Broadcasting company is eligible to display their stage personality on that night, regardless of whether they made their footlight debut in 1932 or in 1890. We make no promises that a forty week tour on the RKO circuit will go to the winner. Neither do we guarantee a huge weekly stipend from a commercial radio contract. But we are going to give prizes to those whose efforts are the best in the opinion of the audience. We will depend upon popular applause to pick the winners. The Hook? We don't know whether or not we will use that antique or modernize the exits. But I will state this: that everyone who attends this performance will certainly consider it one of the best evenings ever enjoyed in the town hall, besides having a chance to win the door prize."

All those who wish to compete in the amateurs are requested to send their name, with the type of offering, to Mr. Deyermond, whose address is 6 Washington avenue.

Four Girls Win Graduation Honors

Four girls have been named for the graduation honors at Punchard high school. They are: Valedictorian, Miss Eleanor Barnard; salutatorian, Miss Ruth Fairweather; first honor essay, Miss Ruth Stott and second honor essay, Miss Constance Putnam.

Miss Barnard maintained an average of 92.19 per cent throughout her four years at Punchard. The averages for the other three girls are: Miss Fairweather, 86.19; Miss Stott, 85.73, and Miss Putnam, 84.22.

Three of the girls have won prizes in the Barnard speaking contests. In the annual contest held last week Miss Putnam won first prize and Miss Fairweather third. Two years ago Miss Barnard won first prize.

French Organist Will Give Recital Tuesday at Chapel

On Tuesday evening, May 10, at 8.15 o'clock, Mlle. Rene Nizan of Paris will give a recital on the Martha Cochran memorial organ in the new chapel of Phillips academy. Mlle. Nizan, a pupil of Louis Vierne, organist of Notre Dame, though only 18 years of age, is an organist of remarkable technique who has been creating a sensation in musical circles in America. The memorial organ sounds like a different instrument in its new setting. It is a European Cathedral organ, pronounced by the organist of Notre Dame, Paris, as "magnifique," and by the Italian Fernando Germani, the head of the organ department of the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia, as "The finest Casavant I have found in America."

Admission is 75 cents and 50 cents at the door.

Two Brush Fires Set Yesterday

The local fire department responded to five alarms yesterday. Chief Emerson states that the last two fires, one on River street and the other at Indian Ridge, were set. A young man in the vicinity of River street reported that he saw two people get out of a machine and set the fire there. An investigation will be conducted.

The fire record yesterday follows:

11.22 a.m. Still alarm; Burnham road; grass fire; no damage.

4.20 p.m. Brush fire on Ballardvale road; no damage.

5.00 p.m. Grass fire at old Hillside boarding house, Shawsheen road.

6.58 p.m. Brush fire off River street. Combination 1 also responded. Laid out 3400 feet of hose.

9.10 p.m. Fire at Indian Ridge.

Bridge Party Held at Country Club

The ladies of the Andover Country club held a luncheon and bridge party at the club Tuesday afternoon and more than 175 persons from various parts of the state attended. Luncheon was served at one o'clock, while bridge play started at two. Forty-one tables were used for the card games. Twenty-five high scorers received prizes at the conclusion of the play.

Refreshments were sold during the course of the event. The proceeds of the affair will be used to treat the children of members to a party at some future date and also for the welfare of the club.

The committee in charge was as follows: Mrs. Stafford A. Lindsay, Mrs. Karl G. Harig, Mrs. Clifford M. North, Mrs. Wright Bolton, Jr., Mrs. Frank H. Galloway, Mrs. Michael J. Lane, Mrs. Walter Sullivan, Mrs. Kellogg Boynton and Mrs. Harry I. Emmons.

Women Voters Elect Officers

The Andover League of Women Voters held its annual meeting on Tuesday afternoon, May 3, at the home of the president, Mrs. John Birdsall, in Shawsheen village. There were about fifty members present. The reports of the outgoing officers were ready, and the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. A. Buel Trowbridge; first vice-president, Mrs. Horace Poynter; second vice-president, Mrs. Harold Rutter; recording secretary, Mrs. Peter Cunningham; corresponding secretary, Mrs. John Birdsall, and treasurer, Miss Helen Chickering.

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Mary Sutton Ramsdell, one of the two state policewomen in Massachusetts. Mrs. Ramsdell and her colleague were first appointed in April, 1930, through the efforts of Mrs. Pinkham of the Massachusetts Civics League, who felt that there was a need for women to take care of the cases involving women and young girls. After a three months' training course in criminal law, Mrs. Ramsdell was assigned to the western part of the state.

Among her various duties, Mrs. Ramsdell has many cases dealing with feeble-minded and runaway girls. With regard to the former Mrs. Ramsdell mentioned the difficulty of having a girl committed to a state school, even after she is proved to be feeble-minded. Mrs. Ramsdell gave instances illustrating many of the different phases of her work.

On Saturday afternoon, June 4, the Andover League plans to hold a garden party at the home of Mrs. Cornelius Wood in Shawsheen village. There will be a children's horse show, given by the pupils of Miss Smith's Riding School in North Andover. Many other amusements are being planned, and one is assured of getting good entertainment for a very small sum of money.

Garden Club Notes

The Spring Pilgrimage of the Massachusetts Federation of Garden Clubs will be a personally conducted trip by automobile through the Arnold Arboretum. Members are invited to meet at the Administration building at two o'clock on May 19. Members of the Andover Garden club are requested to notify Miss Flanders, the secretary, by May 9.

In case of heavy rain, the pilgrimage will be on May 20, at two o'clock.

Parents to Receive Pre-School Advice

For the sake of the young children who are entering school next fall and in order that they may be in good physical condition for continuous work, it is necessary that they previously be vaccinated, have careful medical inspection, and have correction of minor faults or any remedial defects. With this in view, the School Department is requesting that all parents who are entering children next fall register with the teacher in the school building that the child is to attend sometime during the week of May 16 to 20. At this registration, detailed information will be given in regard to what is necessary and also the proper physical record blanks which are furnished by the state and should be filled out by the family physician and returned before the end of this school year.

Help with Odd Jobs

It is unfortunate that jobs as well as food can not be thrown into orange barrels. The barrel plan has proved a great success, and many people have been helped by the food left in our local stores for them. Yet there are others who would rather starve than accept food without working for it. In general, able-bodied men do not receive aid from the Board of Public Welfare, and most of them do not care to apply for it.

The people of Andover have shown their generosity the past few weeks in supporting the orange barrel plan. They should continue to do this, for it will be quite a while before the actual need for donations has passed. However, those residents who can offer the able-bodied men or women of our community an odd job here and there will always be doing something which will be more than appreciated.

Mrs. Lotta M. Johnson, agent for the Board of Public Welfare, has numerous men and women on her lists who want jobs. The local post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars has also been registering unemployed men. Mrs. Johnson receives $260 a year for doing this work, and she spends enough time to merit $2000. The Veterans of Foreign Wars receive absolutely nothing for their services. It remains for the public to do its part by furnishing some work, no matter how little, for these men and women. Taxation should not be used to provide work at this time, for people today who own a $6000 house have no more ready money with which to pay taxes than the man who can pay only four dollars rent a week. But those who do have extra money really ought to be willing to use part of it to give a little work to someone less fortunate. Some of us do have a small surplus; the fine response to the barrel campaign is ample proof of that.

Why not look around the home to see if there is any work that can be done now? Why should not churches, clubs and individuals get together in a mammoth job-finding campaign? Just a little odd job here and there thrown into a make-believe orange barrel will in the end mean food for the needy who are unwilling to accept charity.

Pre-School Clinics

In view of the fact that last Sunday was National Child Health day, the announcement of the local school department that it has set aside the week of May 16th to 20th to furnish parents information on pre-school medical inspections and vaccinations comes at a peculiarly fitting time. May Day has been observed as Child Health day since 1924, but this is the first time that special emphasis has been placed on the youngsters who are looking ahead to their first year in school.

Parents should realize that they are not playing fair with their children if they allow them to go to school with physical handicaps that could be remedied. They should see to it that bad teeth, diseased tonsils, defective vision or hearing are cured or well on the way to cure during the summer. Vaccination is compulsory and innoculation against diphtheria highly desirable for the preschool child, and now is the time to have it done, for parents should never allow their children to enter school in September with a sore arm from vaccination. All the necessary information may be learned during the week of May 16th to 20th, and those parents who are really solicitous about the health of their children will surely take advantage of this opportunity.

Communications

(The following communications relative to the bonus bill now being discussed at Washington have been received at the Townsman office. Philip W. Thomson, in answering a letter from Andover post, 2128, V. F. W., explains that he feels that the public should not be forced to pay out money to veterans who are able-bodied any more than to ordinary able-bodied men.)

Andover Post No. 2128
Veterans of Foreign Wars

"The objects of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are to uphold the Government of the United States; its laws and institutions; to honor and perpetuate the memory of our dead; to assist all comrades in broken health and duly care for the widows or orphans of deceased comrades."

Dear Friend:

Again we are writing you, urging you most sincerely and most earnestly to join the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Andover Post, No. 2128, an organization that is going places and doing things in the interest of all veterans . . . Within the next month a reading is expected on a measure advocating immediate payment of the face value of Adjusted Service Certificates and the refund of interest charged on previous loans. The V. F. W. is making the fight ALONE for this act. This isolated fact reflects how much you need the Veterans of Foreign Wars . . . and how much it is doing for you . . . Enemies of the Veterans, and there are many, lose no opportunity to assail the ex-service man. Ignorance and prejudice have warped many minds, resulting in a neglect of appreciation of the sacrifices, even the supreme, made by the boys who answered the call to arms in 1917 and 1918 . . .

Yours truly,
JAMES J. DUGAN
Commander
JOHN M. ERVING
Adjutant

April 18, 1932

Messrs. James J. Dugan, Commander, and John M. Erving, Adjutant Andover, Mass.

Dear Sirs:

I have received your letter urging me to join the Andover post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and I note that your organization seems to be working hard for a further bonus payment.

The only way the Government can find money to make bonus payments to me is to take it away from everyone else. If I ask that money be taken away from everyone else and given to me I am asking for public aid.

I was not disabled while in the service of the United States and if there is to be national public aid why not let it be for such aged persons as have no relatives to help them,—and also for veterans disabled in the war?

Why not send out a new circular letter like the following:

"To United States Citizens in General:

The Veterans of Foreign Wars who were not disabled by service at the front are, for the most part, in the prime of life physically, and they were strong men to begin with or they would not have been accepted as soldiers. They can take care of themselves in these times of widespread trouble, just as well as any other kind of citizen up against hard conditions. They only ask that the Public (or in other words, the Government), take care of such veterans as were disabled by service at the front. We will urge our representatives in Congress to cease from holding us up as a special group asking for aid from the public. If and when any one of us is obliged to ask for public aid we will do it as plain American citizens who are knocked out and not as Veterans of Foreign Wars who were not disabled by service at the Front."

When you get around to saying something like that to the citizens of the United States you will find that the citizens of the United States will stop speaking against your organizations.

If I now join your organization as you suggest, the ordinary citizen will get the idea that I am joining an organization that begs (for me) for public aid.

Yours very truly,
PHILIP W. THOMSON

P.S. Naturally I realize perfectly well that your members are just as fair and patriotic as the average non-veteran,—no more and no less. Veterans or non-veterans, we are all pretty much alike. The "boys" want some money,—the sooner the better,—and politically minded persons have offered to try to get them some (from the Public,—or in other words,—from the Government). You cannot blame the veterans! And the veterans did miss out on war-time wages.

And on the other hand the veterans will be good sports enough not to blame the public if the public disagrees with them as to the justice of further bonus payments at this time to such veterans as were not injured in the war.

This sob stuff as to veterans uninjured by the war is all bunk. The "boys" themselves don't go in for it. Some of the politically-minded do the sob stuff for them—for the sake of getting results!

P. W. T.

(Mr. Thomson states that the postcript is substantially correct save for a few words here and there.)

Barnard Prize Winning Essay

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL ADDRESS

"An essay that has called forth the consideration of men for some one hundred and thirty-six years must indeed be one of great significance. Such consideration has been, and is being given to George Washington's Farewell Address. The address was first published in a Philadelphia newspaper at the close of Washington's second term of Administration. It was painstakingly written and Washington called on Alexander Hamilton to aid in its construction. The purpose of this Address was, as the name suggests, to bid a farewell to the people of the United States as he left public for a private life. At the same time though, he wished to influence the people as to a course to pursue in dealing with certain problems that face a nation.

The chief and significant points of the Farewell Address lie, I believe, in the statements concerning state relationships and foreign relationships. Let us consider first the significance of the statement in which Washington advises the states to strive for a strong union and be satisfied with none other. It seemed to Washington that this piece of advice was necessary, for the Constitution under this new government did not state that the United States was an indissoluble compact from which no state could withdraw. Also in these days the states of the union were jealous. It was hard for them to give up the idea of sovereign powers and individual states. They could not and did not like to realize that they were no longer "Virginians" and "New Englanders" but were all under a common name "United States."

What real significance that statement has had! What a condition the lack of consideration of that advice has caused! Our Civil War was fought "testing whether this nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated could long endure." Our Union was at stake. We perhaps might have been saved from the calamity of that war if more men had seen the sincerity and truth of Washington's Address as Abraham Lincoln saw it. Since the Civil War settled to a great extent this question of union and since we all see the importance of union and the significance of Washington's statement, we may well turn to the other clause which suggests that America remain free from all European entanglements and alliances.

Almost everything has a background so naturally the statement dealing with foreign relations must have. Perhaps by considering the conditions in America and Europe at the time of this Address, we may understand why Washington felt such advice necessary. The government of United States was as yet new and untried. We were politically free from Europe and could be commercially free as demonstrated by the Revolutionary War. Our relations with England were strained. A Jay Treaty was finally agreed to which tried to lessen the breach. Still, many saw that this treaty was only waylaying a war or a climax of some form. Today we know this climax as the War of 1812.

Our relations with France were no better than those with England. The French kingdom had lately been overthrown and the French King beheaded. Since Great Britain sympathized with the dead king the two countries were led into war. France desired our aid. Washington, then president, feeling that such an alliance would only lead to more, issued a proclamation of neutrality. This angered France. Thus Washington wished to steer inexperienced United States from the turmoil of Europe.

I intend to devote the remainder of the essay to the significance, past, present, and future, of the advice on foreign relations.

In President Monroe's Administration, Washington's Address assumed real significance. This came about through the Monroe Doctrine. This Doctrine was and is our policy in dealings with South and Central America. It is likewise our European policy. Secretary of State Stimson goes as far as to say that it is purely our European policy though it does deal with South America. The part of the Monroe Doctrine that is based on Washington's Farewell Address is that which states that the United States will not interfere with European politics in Europe or in any European possession already in the Western Hemisphere. The Doctrine was no more important yesterday than it is today and the significance of Washington's Address, brought out through the Monroe Doctrine, was no more significant yesterday than today.

Again, at the beginning of the World War Washington's Address was brought before the public by Wilson. At this time Wilson issued a proclamation of neutrality similar to the one issued by Washington at the time of the French Revolution. In that proclamation Wilson stated that it had been our policy to stay out of European politics since the days of Washington and Monroe. This non-affiliation with European troubles must have met the approval of the public for Wilson was re-elected with the cry, "He kept us out of war." Without perhaps realizing it the public agreed with Washington and deemed his advice worthy of consideration.

The question of our isolation policy for which Washington's Address formed a basis came again before the people of United States at the close of the World War. A League of Nations had been formed and since United States had been a ringleader in its formation she was asked to join. We remained from the League then and we remain out of it today. Many people believe as Wilson did that we would not enter tn entangling alliance by joining. Many have decidedly opposite views believing that participation would mean nothing but an entangling alliance, since the League looks into and attempts to settle international disputes and questions.

The great question today is whether the conditions of United States have so changed that this policy of isolation is no longer significant and possible. I believe it is still correct and possible. Washington had no gift of foresight beyond that of any human being, but he could imagine. He saw then a United States covering an area of less than one-third of that covered today. He saw a population one-twentieth of the population today. He saw Europe rise from one perturbation only to sink into another. Though he could not see America as it is today he could imagine what Europe would continue to be in the future.

Besides, Washington did not say that we must not work in concert with Europe. He only said that we must not join in any alliance or we must not sympathize with one country against another. Our Armament Conferences are made up of nations' representatives who are trying to come to some harmonious agreement concerning arms. United States willingly sends representatives to these as Washington undoubtedly would have done. That is working in concert with Europe and all the world.

Today the isolation policy is no longer, as I can see, a theory which we are trying out. We have tested the theory and have seen the results of its disregard. We entered an alliance in 1917. The condition resulting for America, was anything but beneficial. We gained some European recognition, some satisfaction' some honor, plenty of unnatural prosperity. Other than that poor Uncle Sam got only bumps and bruises, and plenty of debts to drain at his pocket-book. Uncle Sam's family today all feel the pressure of taxation. Finally, Senator Moses of New Hampshire lays all our present difficulties to the dabbling we did in European politics and in Europe when we crossed the ocean in 1917.

If the Civil War proved that the statement concerning state relationships was true and indeed significant then surely the World War proved conclusively the force of Washington's advice as to foreign relations.

In the future this Address will constitute a basis of argument against a change in our American policy. Today we are at a crisis and we must decide on a definite policy to continue. With allied debts, reparations, moratoriums, League of Nations, World Court and Sino-Japanese trouble all drawing us into their midst we must make a final decision.

Thus, the address has been significant in the past, not because it was a theory that Washington had given birth to but because it was proven to be necessary by the trial and error method.

Need we resort to this disagreeable trial and error method in the future or shall we from experience realize the great significance of George Washington's Address?"

Class 8C at Stowe Leads Ball League

Class 8-C by winning from 8-B in a Stowe Junior high school league game, 6-3, last week now leads in the standing of games won and lost. They have won two games in as many starts.

In the other part of the doubleheader played on the playstead, class 7-A1 and 8-E were tied at the end of the game, 5-5.

8-C had William Laurie, a left-hander, on the mound and James Bissett, another southpaw, pitched for the losing team. Both lads show promise of developing into good pitchers.

James Holden scored two runs while Edward Fraize, Arthur Kibbee, Ralph Greenwood, and William Laurie each scored one run apiece for 8-C. For 8-B Kerr Sparks, Jr., James Thompson and Joseph Kulikowski were the run scorers.

Class 7-A1 managed to play a tie game, 5-5 with Class 8-E. George Wallace pitched for 8-E. Frank Ostrowski, Jr., right-hander, was in good shape for 7-A1 and held the eight graders to a few hits. Errors accounted for the 8-E runs.

Addison Gallery Offers New Exhibit of Textile Designs

Processes and Examples Shown by Pacific Mills of Lawrence—Historical and Contemporary Influences Illustrated with Many and Varied Fabrics

Something a little out of the ordinary in art galleries is the exhibition of "Historical and Contemporary Influences on Modern Textiles" now being shown at the Addison Gallery of American Art at Phillips academy. The people of this locality will find this an interesting exhibit, and when the textiles are removed on May 25, the attendance at the gallery should have increased a great deal. Up to May 1, the first anniversary of the opening of the gallery, 25,000 persons had visited the Hill to see the various displays.

The Pacific Mills of Lawfence have loaned the gallery the basis of an interesting exhibit, which shows the process of printing designs on fabrics. In a show case on one side of the room is a water color sketch of a design, a zinc plate on which the design is engraved three times larger than the original sketch, and a copper roller which transfers the design to the cloth on the printing machine. The colors go on the cloth one by one, as is shown by a strip of cloth which was loaned by the mill. At intervals around the room are photographs of the actual way the cloth is made and printed.

The Pacific exhibit contains examples of cotton materials used for drapery and upholstery purposes. There is one showing scenes in Washington's life, another with a Colonial design and a third with designs typical of the Civil War period.

The large exhibit room on the second floor also has many fabrics showing historical and contemporary influences, some loaned by the Francis H. Bacon Co. of Boston and others by W. and J. Sloane, New York. The French group presents designs which show the influence of the Directoire. There is in this corner of the room an exact reproduction of the blue damask in the Napoleon study at Malmaisson. Paul Poiret, the well-known French designer of women's clothes, is represented in the collection by an adaption of the ostrich plume emblem of the Prince of Wales.

The English section contains a few pieces showing the classical influence of the Adam period and one piece which is a copy of Tudor embroidery. Italian and Spanish designs are also included in the exhibit, a noteworthy piece being a copy of the crimson damask in the Vatican. There are also three Chinese fabrics.

The possibilities of cotton cloth for drapery purposes is shown by a group of designs executed by Ruth Reeves, designer for W. and J. Sloane, New York. Two designs exhibit "Green Pastures," one of which incidentally belies its name. "Manhattan," a design consisting of scenes in New York City, proves very interesting. It is said that this was executed for a man who had a country office. "Homage to Emily Dickinson" is also a number which will invite close inspection. Other designs by Ruth Reeves are "Aiken Drag," "Florae Americanae," "American Scene," and "Figures in Still Life."

In this same room is a collection of handwrought silver lent by George C. Gebelein of Boston. There are many examples of Greek influence, one of them being a water pitcher done the way it would have been done if the Greeks used water pitchers. There is also a copy of Paul Revere's "Sons of Liberty" bowl. Pottery lovers will find the collection of Henry Varnam Poor pottery an interesting one. Poor is represented in the Metropolitan Museum by his pottery. This particular exhibit is loaned by the Montross Galleries.

On the first floor of the gallery is an exhibit of "Water Colors in the Modern Idiom," circulated by the American Federation of Arts. There is nothing really outstanding in this group, although there is a picture which immediately attracts attention. It is by Stuart Davis and is entitled "Dormitory." Were one to attempt a guess at what the subject was, he probably would say "Dormitory," but his conjecture would be based only on two banners with an H and a Y on them. Probably everything connected with a dormitory can be found in the painting, but it would be a real puzzle to put the details in the correct places and correct proportions. Charles Burchfield, Wanda Gag, Richard Lahey, Martin Lewis, George Luks and Maurice Prendergast, well-known locally because of their works in the permanent collection at the gallery are also represented in the water color exhibit. This exhibit closes May 21.

"Come at once," he said, "ma wee bairn has swallowed a saxpence."

"How old is it?" asked the doctor.

School Board Changes Rule on Meeting Reports

should have received. Mr. Sanborn said that he is remedying the situation by deducting five dollars a week from their pay until the extra week's pay is made up.

The Buildings and Grounds committee reported that it had received two letters from the Andrew Wilson company in regard to its work on the roof of the Shawsheen school. One letter was read which made recommendations as to further work which it was thought was needed. It was voted to purchase a power mower for the Central plant, the cost being $280. It will be bought from the W. R. Hill company.

Mr. Sanborn mentioned that intelligence tests had been given in several of the grades and the results were found to be much above the average.

The 4-H club sponsored by the Essex Agricultural school is having a field day at Hathorne soon, and the school committee was asked if it could supply one of the school buses for transportation for some of the children. The committee felt that it had no funds which it could legally use, and so no formal action was taken on the suggestion.

It was voted that the sub-committee on teachers and curriculum make a study of the matter of having one session for Stowe Junior high school during the coming year, and report back with its findings at the next meeting. The finance committee was instructed to make a study of the general economic and salary situation and report in the fall, this being done primarily to allow the committee to be prepared to inform the special committee on town salaries as to the status of the local teachers' salaries.

A request was received from the Andover Vacation church school for the use of one of the school buildings, and this was granted.

The financial statement for the month ending May 3 follows: General expense, $546.65; expense of instruction, $10,834.26; textbooks and supplies, $314.72; janitors' salaries, $611.64; fuel, $1701.34; janitors' supplies, $238.77; repairs, $313.86; health, $306.51; transportation, $1135.56; tuition and miscellaneous, $108.64; total, $16,111.95.

A Toast to Mother

Here's to the one who loves to talk
Of the baby's first tooth and the day he first walked,
Of his bright sayings and cute little ways;
She never tells of his real bad days.
In case you can't guess who I'm talking about,
Her name is Mother—a real good scout.

Here's to the one who perhaps may be
Just a little too fond of her cup of tea;
One who sometimes (I'm sorry to say)
Just had to punish us in some way.
Perhaps we were whipped and sent to bed
Or went without pudding or pie instead.
Nevertheless we love her the same,
I hardly think I need mention her name,
For she is known the wide world o'er
The Mothers of sons and daughters galore.

Here's to the one who labored long,
Who never grumbled, instead sang a song;
Who remembered the birthdays as they came,
And never wearied of playing a game,
Who kissed our bumps and bruises away
And tenderly cared for us day by day;
So here's to all Mothers where'er they may be,
God guard them and keep them through Eternity.

Abbot Academy

Miss Frances Knapp, Dean of Freshmen and Sophomores at Wellesley college, gave a most interesting address to the faculty of Abbot academy on Saturday evening, April 30, discussing problems of mutual importance to the college and secondary school teacher.

Miss Kelsey, by her sympathetic portrayal, made clear, in her talk on Sunday evening, the esteem and affection with which the Abbot of an earlier day regarded Mr. and Mrs. Draper. Miss Kelsey's reminiscences are very valuable and are heartily appreciated in the school where the personnel of the student body changes every few years.

Theodate Johnson, '25, sang with enthusiasm and beauty of tone at the recital which she gave in honor of the Abbot Birthday, on Tuesday evening, May 3. The intelligence of her various interpretations was noteworthy. Mr. Achilles proved an eminently satisfactory accompanist.

On Wednesday afternoon, May 4, Davis hall was filled with a spring-like atmosphere. The Colonial fete was successful from the point of view of organization (thanks to the chairman, Katharine Cook) and of well-executed activities. The book booth, which seemed very like a corner of the Mount Vernon library, the food booth, reminiscent of the Mount Vernon kitchen (where the well-filled pot on the fireplace crane held "grabs" of every description) were furnished from the Abbot stage properties and store of old furniture. The unusually efficient committee chairmen were as always greatly aided by Mr. Scannell's ingenuity and the co-operation of all the men on the place. The tea-room, which looked like the grounds of Mount Vernon in the spring-time, was tastefully decorated by Carol Pike, who had been given a quantity of cut evergreen trees from the North Wilmington Nurseries, and had been loaned Mr. Ruxton's and Mr. Scannell's canaries. Mrs. Poynter had made possible the pony-cart rides which helped to swell the fund of receipts, and the pleasant spirit of co-operation was everywhere to be felt. Morin's decorated boxes for the candy sold, and many of the lovely corsages which were quickly sold at the flower booth were made by Mrs. Hanson. Several of the younger day scholars helped to carry out the Colonial effect by coming in fine old costumes, some of them heirlooms. One of the best-paying features on the program was the dancing. The music furnished by the Reveters was so popular that the dance floor (a space enclosed by a white picket fence) had to be enlarged considerably as the afternoon wore on.

On Saturday afternoon the Aeolian society will give what promises to be a fine program for the school and visitors. Miss Friskin, faculty advisor and Betty Holihan, president, announce the following numbers for 2.45 o'clock in Davis hall on May 7: Mozart two-piano selection by Alice Schultz and Clare O'Connell, Louise Porter and Betty Holihan; Moussorgsky selection by Betty Bigler and Mariatta Tower, Olive French and Betty Palmer; Organ and piano ensemble by Elizabeth Gay and Betty Holihan; all members joining in three songs, and in a kindersymphonie led by Alice Schultz.

Dr. Robert Russell Wicks, chaplain of Princeton University will conduct the evening service at 8.15 on Saturday, May 7.

A small group of the Abbot faculty will present a play on Tuesday evening, May 10, for the students and "old girls" of Abbot. The title is shrouded in secrecy.

Sherrill Club Wins Soccer Game, 5-4

In a spirited soccer game held at Balmoral field between the Sherrill club and the Shawsheen A. C., the Sherrill club emerged victor, 5-4. The game was very interesting throughout. At half-time the score was 4-0 in favor of the Sherrill club boys, but the game was later evened up with the Sherrill club scoring the winning goal in the final minutes.

Since 1913, the cost of government in the United States has increased 450 percent, while the earnings of the people rose less that half that amount, according to Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland.
